

You Are Not Alone.

An evening of sandwiches, water, conversation, and compassion — shared across Anchorage by the Tuesday Cell Group of Bereka Church, together with family, friends, and Recalibration Lab.

Service became a family moment.

Children joined the outreach and helped place food and water directly into people's hands.

Preparing With Purpose

Before anyone hit the streets, the work started around a table: making, wrapping, labeling, packing, and organizing food so it could be handed out quickly and respectfully.

“Cast all your anxiety on Him because He cares for you.”

1 PETER 5:7 — THE MESSAGE PLACED ON EACH FOOD PACK

WHAT WENT INTO THE BAGS

- Ham, turkey, and chicken sandwiches prepared and individually wrapped.
- Bottled water packed alongside the meals for easy distribution.
- Faith-based labels added to remind each person that they are seen and cared for.
- Donations from friends helped make the outreach possible.

More than preparation.

Every package carried a practical need — food and water — and a simple invitation to hope.

Taking Compassion to the Streets

At around 6:00 PM, the group divided into three teams — one heading downtown, one covering midtown, and another serving the areas in between. Families and children joined the effort.

Why it mattered

Homelessness is a significant challenge in Alaska. A feeding program cannot solve every need, but it can tell a person: you are seen, you matter, and you are not alone.

WHAT THE EVENING LOOKED LIKE

Meeting people where they were.

Some meals were handed through car windows. Others were carried to sidewalks, roadside gathering spots, and places where people had set up temporary shelter.

The team did not wait for people to come to an event. They went out — in the rain and throughout different parts of Anchorage — to offer a meal, a bottle of water, and a moment of human connection.

More Than a Meal

The sandwiches were simple. The deeper purpose was presence — showing up, listening, serving with dignity, and reminding people that hope can still find them in hard places.

WHAT WE CARRIED WITH US

Food met an immediate need. Water offered practical care. A Scripture message offered encouragement. And every conversation was an opportunity to treat someone as a neighbor rather than a problem to be passed by.

For the children who joined, the evening also became a lesson in compassion lived out — not just talked about.

WHAT COMES NEXT

One evening does not end homelessness, but repeated acts of service can build trust, strengthen community, and open doors for mentoring, prayer, and continued support.

“Sometimes the first step toward hope is simply knowing someone noticed.”

THANK YOU.

To every friend who donated, every family member who helped prepare food, every child who served, and every volunteer who drove across Anchorage: your generosity became a meal, a conversation, and a reminder that no one should feel invisible.
